Poetry Corner

Americanos we may say
they are.

Who stole our very belongings, under
our home roof.
Like thieves—instead of the army
of U.S. of A.

I went to my neighbor
to replace the one I lost.

Thankful I made it.
My heart is crying for those who did not come home. Difficult to forget.

June McGlashen