

Symphony of Trees to be Nov. 27-29 in Anchorage

The Anchorage Symphony Women's League is hoping for a green Christmas when they show off trees at the 10th Annual Symphony of Trees Nov. 27-29.

The fundraiser, which is chaired by Annie Laurie Howard, will be in the Arco Atrium at 700 G St. and will benefit the Anchorage Symphony Orchestra.

The event raised a record $10,000 for the orchestra last year and will include choral groups, opera performers and a raffle for a ticket donated by Alaska Airlines to anywhere the airline serves. Trees donated by local businesses will also be given at the raffle.

Howard, who hopes this year's turnout will measure up to last year's, set up the event with the help of 95 volunteers.

Businesses throughout Anchorage donated more than 50 trees which will be decorated for the displays.

Admission for the event will be $2

*Businesses throughout Anchorage
donated more than 50 trees which will be decorated. . .*

for children under 12 and seniors over 65, $3 for everyone else. Those who want more information or advance tickets may contact Howard at the Anchorage Museum of History and Art sales shop at 343-6163.

