

Rhodes to speak at APU graduation

Alaska Pacific University announced recently that Dr. Frank H.T. Rhodes, president of Cornell University, will be this year's commencement speaker May 10 in the Homer and Ruth Moseley Sports Center on the APU campus.

A distinguished geologist, professor and author, Rhodes has been president of Cornell since 1977. He has written numerous books and articles on geology and education.

In addition to giving the commencement speech, Rhodes will receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from APU.
