

Wright Campaigns

Don Wright, candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives has been on a campaign swing visiting communities between Anchorage and Kenai stopping at Gerdwood, Portage and Seward.

He made an inspection of highway construction, talked with townspeople and talked with fishermen on various fishing problems, and tourists on tour potentials.

Earlier this week Wright visited Valdez and different highway communities.

Returning to Anchorage, Wright left for Washington, D.C. as a member of a delegation that testified on native land claims yesterday and today before the full House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee.

The delegation is testifying today before the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee under the chairmanship of Sen.

Henry M. Jackson on bills dealing with Alaska native land claims problems.

On returning from Washington, Don Wright will campaign in the Interior Alaska communities
