

BRANCHING OUT

Built in 1917, the Bank of Alaska (now NBA) was the first concrete building in Skagway, costing approximately $40,000 to construct – a very large building for Skagway back then! (It was believed that Skagway would continue to grow to become what Anchorage is today – the largest city in Alaska.)