

HOWARD ROCK With Joe Upicksoun, president of the Arctic Slope Regional Corporation, on June 5, 1973, at the annual meeting.
Photo By MARGIE BAUMAN

HOWARD ROCK, Tundra Times editor and publisher takes one last look at the December 3, 1975, issue before it gets sent off to be printed. Deadline was Tuesday afternoon and Rock emphasized being on time.
Photo by SUE GAMACHE

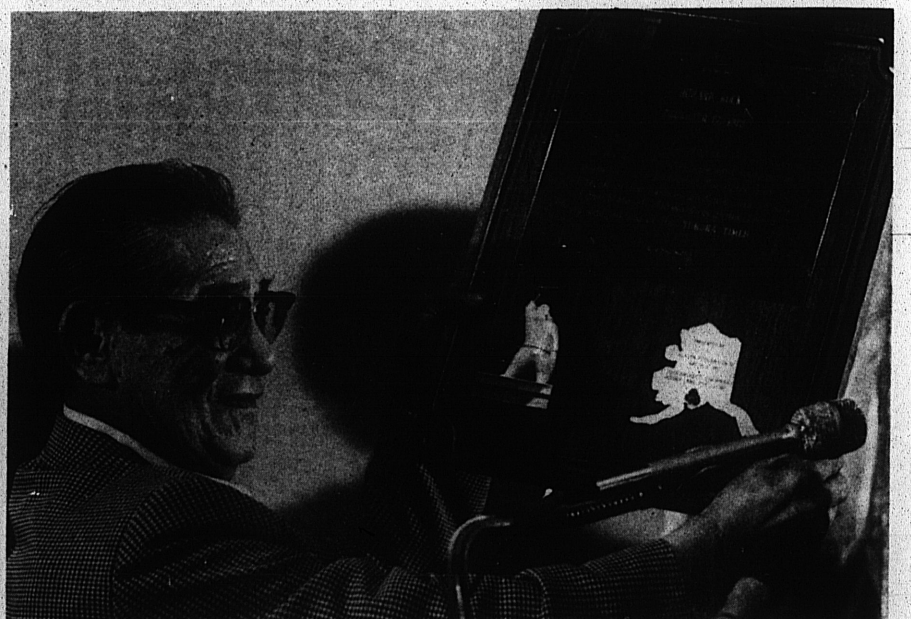

A MEDIUM and a message. Howard Rock, editor and publisher of the Tundra Times communicated through his typewriter to his fellow Alaska Natives.

Photo by JIMMY BEDFORD

HOWARD ROCK at the Top Of The World, Anchorage Westward Hotel on October of 1969.

HOWARD ROCK, noted Eskimo artist and editor of the "Tundra Times", stands by one of his paintings with Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of the RCA Corp. Both received honorary degrees from the University of Alaska at commencement exercise in Fairbanks Sunday, May 19, 1974.
(UA Photo)

HOWARD ROCK proudly holds up the plaque presented to him by the Alaska Federation of Natives in recognition and grateful appreciation for his dedication, courage, and foresight in promoting and protecting the rights and interest of the Eskimos, Indians, and Aleuts of the State of Alaska through the funding and editing of the Tundra Times.