(The world-renowned prophetess publishes at the beginning of each year her visions of future events which come to her, she says, through various psychic channels. In her last set of forecasts, published midyear 1971, Jeane Dixon predicted the reelection of President Thieu in South Vietnam, the admission of Communist China to the U.N. with the concomitant walk-out of Nationalist China, and the virtual retirement of Washington Redskin quarterback Sonny Jurgenson from active play. These are her predictions for 1972.)

THE MIDEAST AND ASIA

The India-Pakistan War, as well as the Israeli-Egypt confrontation, appears to be part and parcel of the same Communist Plan—to keep United States diplomatic and military forces engaged on foreign fronts; this shall continue.

Failure to bring about a lasting settlement in these areas will show America up as an impotent peacemaker, which is exactly what our opposing forces want—for propaganda purposes. No matter how sincerely we try, our efforts will fail, and bloodshed will continue in the Middle East.

Golda Meir's prestige and status are still rising, but the future looks dark for Arafat, the Palestinian leader. In Jordan, King Hussein will continue to have his problems.

I see danger—war clouds over Turkey, Iran and Greece. The battles in India and Pakistan are just the beginning of other bigger, more devastating wars in that whole area.

OIL IN LIBYA

American oil companies with interests in Libya will lose all their investments to our opposing forces—with one exception.

I saw a channel connected to the ghost of Lenin hovering over one of our states. Lenin's ghost stood on sheaves of papers, piled high with pencils, linking him to a large, important American corporation based in that state.

I get that this company has close ties to the opposing forces and will therefore receive preferential treatment from the powers that be, including those in Libya. The bonds of the people involved in the company go back to when Lenin was in power.

A prominent presidential hopeful from this state will not win the nomination.

THE ENTERPRISE

Just a few years ago I saw Nikita Khrushchev standing on the deck of a Russian cruiser in the Barents Sea, one of the northernmost Russian seas, far above Murmansk. I felt he was there to witness the successful firing of a huge missile from under the sea.

During the first week of the India-Pakistan War it seemed I saw the same scene, but this time the locale was changed—it was in the Bay of Bengal instead of the cold Arctic sea, and the missiles were heading toward Dacca.

I feel the same kind of Russian missiles are now at undersea locations waiting to be aimed at our naval carrier, The Enterprise, and I gravely caution the Seventh Fleet.

The Russians would like nothing better than to destroy the big carrier in such a manner—that is, without an open declaration of war—and are thinking right now about attempting to do so when they feel the time is right and The Enterprise is in a vulnerable position. Military leaders in the USSR would like to discredit our carrier-based superiority on the high seas. Radar screens should be watched carefully every second, day and night! The Enterprise need not be destroyed, but "Eternal vigilance is the price of peace."
