

Public Health Division Testing Microwave Ovens

The Environmental Health Section of the State Division of Public Health is currently making a survey of microwave ovens in commercial establishments for possible radiation leakage of these types of units.

Since the equipment for checking is currently available in the Northern Regional Office located in Fairbanks, if any individuals have these units in their homes and desire to have them checked for safety purposes, the sanitarians will be available to provide this service for a limited time.

Please call Mr. Bruce (452-1881) if you live within the City of Fairbanks or Mr. Morgan (452-1595) if you reside outside the city for a survey of your microwave unit. There is no charge for this service.
