

Exhibit can be seen at museum until March 2

Earth, Fire and Fibre XVIII opens at the Anchorage Museum of History and Art with a public reception on Sunday, Jan. 6 from 1 to 3 p.m.

This popular biennial craft exhibition includes 114 works by 88 Alaskan artists. A total of 403 works were submitted for the exhibit which was juried by Jonathan Fairbanks, the curator of Decorative Arts at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Accepted works include 30 clay, 43 fibre, 18 wood, 11 bone/ivory, 3 stone, 7 glass and 2 in metal.

The Juror's Choice Award of $1,000 was given to Sandra Harrington of Anchorage for her quilt "Celebration." Five awards of $500 each were given to Harry Cawkins of Fairbanks for "Teleostucum," a wood fish sculpture with Northwest Coast designs; Evelyn Douglas of Hooper Bay for her woven grass basket and tray "And the oil touched my shore;" Bradley McLeMore of Bird Creek for "Trailmaker I - Shrine to Three," a clay sculpture; Pat Pearlman of Fairbanks for "Spring Thaw," a sterling silver, gold nugget, diamond beryl crystal pin; and D. Lowell Zercher of Eagle River for his wood "Gramod Clock."

Honorable Mention was given to Linelle McEntire of Anchorage for "The Fibre of My Being: A Self Portrait" and Apanuluk Charlie Kairaiuak of Anchorage for his wood, bone and ivory mask "Time Caretaker."

Earth, Fire and Fibre will remain on view through March 2, 1991. It is funded in part by grants from the Alaska State Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts with matching funds supplied by the Anchorage Museum Association and the Municipality of Anchorage.
