

Congratulations women

We recently had the privilege of spending time with the women of the Alaska Native Women's Statewide Organization as they convened to discuss matters of importance to all.

Anyone who spent time with these dedicated women would come away truly impressed and convinced that the women of Alaska are doing well.

The women are vitally concerned about the futures of their corporations, the education of their children, their health and the political process.

It might be comforting to some men to sit back and chuckle about "kitchen table discussions" of corporate policy but judging from these talks, that kitchen table discussion is nothing to scoff at.

Solid information and counseling was offered by workshops leaders and many participants had more to offer than the leaders.

It was a meeting that was a joy to watch and impressive to attend.

We congratulate the women who were there and hope their sisters in the villages can share in the benefits of the meeting.
