

Tundra Times

Sports Section

From the Sports Editor –

NFL season nears end

Well at long last we are near the end of the NFL season, the only game remaining will be the Pro Bowl. True to our word the Steelers came through with the Super Bowl win, just like we told you they would. We even had the margin of victory correct. However, we did not foresee the offensive explosion that happened. We just want you to know that we can make the right prediction and we will keep reminding you until next season.

^Had a great time this past weekend at Knik watching the championship showdown and was really impressed with Carl Huntington's team, he seemed to be saving them for the Rony and that can spell nothing but TROUBLE for his competition.

We were unable to have our Iditarod coverage this week but we are hoepful that we can continue the column in next week's edition.

Until next week, take care.