Bloodhounds get their name from being the first breed whose blood lines were recorded. This was done by the monks of St. Hubert's Abbey in France in the ninth century.