

Young appoints two Alaskans

Rep. Don Young has announced the appointment of a second Fairbanks resident to his Washington staff. Earlier this month, he hired Anne Mullins, formerly with the BLM in Fairbanks, as his Press Secretary. Today he confirmed that Rod Moore is taking the position of Staff Aide for Fisheries and Natural Resources.

Moore is a graduate of the University of Alaska at Fairbanks and holds a B. S. in Natural Resources Management. He also attended the College of Forestry in Syracuse, N. Y.

Originally from New York, Moore moved to Alaska in 1974 following a three year tour of duty with the Marine Corps. He has lived since that time in the Fairbanks area and also worked in Emmonak on the South mouth of the Yukon River.

Both Mullins and Moore will assume their duties in the Congressman's Washington office in January.
