

More than 19 Million Americans Can Not Read

Who do you know who can not read?

More than 19 million Americans are unable to read well enough to understand a newspaper or magazine, many of them adults well past the age of going to school.

Beginning this month, the Literacy Council of Alaska will help adults develop basic reading abilities or improve their existing skills.

The program will utilize the Laubach Literacy Method, founded in the 1920's by Dr. Frank C. Laubach, usually operating on a one-to-one basis under the direction of a certified tutor.

For more information on classes, forming now, contact the Fairbanks North Star Borough Library at 452-5170, or the Literacy Council of Alaska, evenings at 456-6272.
