

Stress aid for Vietnam vets

Associated Press

JUNEAU — Alaska apparently has become the first state to enact a law dealing specifically with "post-Vietnam stress syndrome" — the emotional readjustment problems faced by veterans who returned after serving in an unpopular war.

Gov. Jay Hammond has signed into law a bill appropriating $315,000 to identify and deal with "post traumatic stress disorder" affecting Vietnam veterans and their families.