Carr's employees outside Gambell St. store in the early 1950s.

Larry Carr moved to Alaska in 1947 with a few dollars and a lot of ambition. "I just fell in love with Alaska," says Larry. "I saw so many opportunities."

Working two jobs at a time, Larry saved his money and dreamed of opening his own grocery store. Which is just what he did in 1950 in a Quonset hut on the corner of 13th and Gamble.

Today, Carrs Quality Centers are known throughout the food industry as models of modern supermarkets. What's the secret of Larry's success? It's a lot simpler than you think.

"We're in the people business. We have to earn our customers by giving them quality, good prices and service that shows we really care. At Carrs Quality Centers, we are all dedicated to making a positive difference in the world we serve."

MarkAir salutes Larry Carr as part of our celebration of serving Alaskans for 40 years. And just like Larry, we're proud to call Alaska our home.
