

40 YEARS OF SERVICE—Tony Joule, left, is being congratulated by Sen. E. L. (Bob) Bartlett, center, on his long 40 years of government service in Alaska. Tony's wife, May, looks on approvingly. Tony Joule was presented an award by the U. S. Government recently in Washington, D. C. Tony taught school for great many years most of the time in Northwest Alaska. He was one of the first teachers who taught the editor of the Tundra Times, Howard Rock, when he started his teaching career with the St. Thomas Episcopal Mission at Point Hope. Tony is now a sanitation aide with the Public Health Service. He operates from his home and office in Kotzebue.