

FAIRBANKS DAILY NEWS-MINER PRESS—Pictured is the News-Miner's most modern Goss offset press that produces 40,000 newspapers per hour. The Tundra Times will start printing with this facility in the near future, perhaps the latter part of October. The Times is also going to switch to a weekly, probably sometime in November after going through a training period of making its own news columns with a varityper, headliner and other accessories. The training period has not started as yet due to the late arrival of some of the equipment. —Photo Courtesy of Daily News-Miner
