

Orderly State Land Selection Aim of Bill

Senator Bartlett introduced a bill at the request of the Alaska Division of Lands which would provide for the more orderly selection and management of lands and mineral rights under the Alaska Statehood Act.

The bill would make four changes in existing law:

1. It would remove a ten-year limit placed on the state for the selection of lands under federal mineral lease. If the limit is not removed the state will not be able to select land under federal lease after January 3, 1969.

2. It would allow the state to take over federal mineral leases upon tentative approval of a state selection including the leases. Now the state does not take over the leases until it receives patent to the selected lands.

3. It would allow the state to select subsurface rights to land withdrawn for surface use and not otherwise available for state selection. Such a subsurface selection would be allowed only where oil exploration is compatible with the surface use of the withdrawn or reserved lands.

4. It would allow the state to make small selections in park and forest areas where boundaries between state and federal land constantly fluctuate because of beach erosion or changes in channels of navigable streams.

B. G. Olson

B. G. Olson Leaves UA; Gets Post At William Jewell College in Mo.

B. G. Olson, director of university relations and assistant to the president at the University of Alaska, has resigned to become executive vice president of William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., according to an announcement by UA President William R. Wood.

An Alaskan since 1954 and a former Juneau publisher, Olson and his family will leave for Missouri December 13.

"The departure of Bob Olson is a real loss to the university and the state," Dr. Wood declared. "At the same time, his appointment to a major administrative position in higher education is a tribute to his demonstrated capabilities."

"The university has benefited greatly from his service and we are particularly indebted to his fine work in establishing the University of Alaska Press, which was done primarily outside of his regular assignment and hours."

Olson joined UA in the summer of 1964 as head of the Department of News Service and Publications and was named director of university relations in 1966.

He has been associated with UA for five years as a part-time instructor at the Juneau-Douglas Community College in 1956 when he was publisher of the old Juneau Independent.
