

IT'S TIME.

In the best of times, a lot of people could be Alaska's governor.

This time, Alaskans need a governor who will draw us together. Who cares about what matters to us, in our communities. Who listens to us.

In these times, we need a governor who hasn't lost touch with us. Who has been working with us all along to help us solve our problems.

Someone who understands that there's a great deal more to being governor than promoting big construction projects paid for with the Permanent Fund.

Most of all, a governor who will work for us, not for his friends or for his own wallet.

It's time for Arliss Sturgulewski.

- Alaskan for 34 years • Independent business-woman • In third term as State Senator • More than 20 years' public service to Alaskans • Chairman of Senate Natural Resources Committee

- Advisor to International North Pacific Fisheries Commission • Chairman of Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education • Board of Directors, Anchorage Community YMCA
