

Ted Ryberg to Come Back to University

COLLEGE H. Theodore Ryberg, director of libraries at the University of Alaska from October 1963 to August 1968, will return to this position effective October 16.

In announcing his reappointment, Dr. Donald R. Theophilus, Jr., academic vice president noted, "Professor Ryberg was too much an Alaskan at heart to stay away long. We are delighted he is rejoining us."

Ryberg resigned last August to become dean of Instructional Services at the University of South Florida at Tampa. During his previous service at the university he formulated the building program for the new library building which is due to be opened this month and the main campus library nearly tripled its collections.

Before joining the University of Alaska in 1963, Ryberg was assistant director of libraries at Syracuse University, New York. He also served on the staff of the University of Buffalo and the Rochester Institute of Technology Libraries in New York.

He earned his master of science degree in 1957 at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, and a bachelor's degree in 1955 at Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania.

His professional memberships have included the American, New York, Pacific Northwest, and Alaska Library Associations, the Alaska State Advisory Council for Inter-library Cooperation and the Society of American Archivists.

In Fairbanks he was a member of the board of directors of the Tundra Times and a member of the board of the Friends of the Library. He was also a member of the Alaska and Tanana-Yukon Historical Societies and the College Rotary Club.

William H. Smith, who has served as acting director of Libraries since last September, will return to his position as head of the Library Acquisition Department.
