Whether she's mushing the trails or flying with the National Guard, Barbara Crane has represented the Tundra Times across Alaska and the nation.

Barbara started volunteering at the Tundra Times in 1986 and is now a part-time employee in charge of billing and circulation. Despite the extra paperwork, Barbara's name can usually be found above a story in each issue of the newspaper.

As an honorary Eskimo Scout Barbara often travels with the National Guard. This year she went with the Eskimo Scouts to Washington, D.C., to cover the presidential inauguration.

In October, when the three gray whales were trapped in the ice off Barrow, Barbara was there, helping the Guard. Her pictures of the whale rescue won second place for Best Spot News Picture at the Native American Press Association's fifth annual newspaper contest.

Recently, Barbara has taken up the sport of dog mushing. She followed the Iditarod Trail to Skwentia this year.

Barbara's travels have enabled the Tundra Times to bring its readers first-hand coverage of events around the state. So whether you live in Sitka, Gambell, Barrow or somewhere in between, you can be sure that the Tundra Times will be there — representing the Native people of Alaska.
