ALASKA STUDENT HIGHER EDUCATION SERVICES

Talent Search is a program that can assist interested people in finding out how to finish high school, where to look for a profession or a trade, and what colleges or other post-secondary institutions are available.

Talent Search is one of the programs with the Alaska Student Higher Education Services (A.S.H.E.S.). The other program is the Upward Bound Program. The purpose of Talent Search is to provide "certain and designated services to all people who reside in the state of Alaska who meet the low income, educationally disadvantaged or cultural need criteria set by the U.S. government".

There are four Talent Search counselors who have established base offices in Dillingham, Bethel, Nome, Kotzebue. The Talent Search counselors travel throughout the state of Alaska counseling and advising persons currently enrolled in high school graduates, drop-outs from high school or other post-secondary institutions and other persons who are interested in continuing their education.

Talent Search counselors can provide:

- 1) Career and educationally related material on all Alaskan schools as well as "outside" colleges and vocational institutions;
- 2) Financial aid information and forms; and
- 3) Any other information needed to gain entrance and successfully complete an appropriate educational program.

The counselors utilize mail and telephone services as well as using local radio stations to let out-lying villages know when they plan on being in certain villages and where they can be reached.

There is a need for experienced and above all Native people with the necessary credentials. Talent Search can assist the interested people of Alaska by providing the information needed to prepare for the jobs available at the local or regional levels. For further information on the Talent Search Program call or write:
