

As the ice melts, whales, other sea animals gather

by Grace Slnwoko

for the Toronto Times

GAMBETTA Springtime like now, always is a busy time for our people here.

When the ice is less and less, the whales and other sea animals are out there. As soon as the wind calms down, the men will be out there hunting.

In May someone had a whale again, so we had two others earlier, too.

It is fun to see more of the gravel on the ground. This year the snow is melting away so fast.

Years ago we used to play ball on the gravel beach dunes this time of the year in the evenings.

It is so pleasant when the nights are not dark any more, to be out during night hours.