

Excitement Mounts for Olympics

Excitement is mounting in Fairbanks as preparations get underway for the 1973 World Eskimo-Indian Olympics. A record number of participants are expected to make this the largest and most exciting year ever.

For the first time in the history of the games, all contestants will take part in formulating future plans for the Olympics.

There will be two meetings held, both at the beginning and the wrap-up of the games, to solicit ideas and suggestions for improvements and additions, making the games more and more a reflection of the spirit of traditional village games.

Villagers are urged to write the Olympics Committee, Box 1287, Fairbanks, Alaska 99701 for more information on this years event.

Dance groups and contestants are still being sought and native arts and crafts are needed for exhibition and sale. Village artists may contact the Committee for details.
