

Navy Cleanup

Senator Stevens received word this week that the Navy will begin clean-up operations this summer at Point McIntyre at the entrance to Prudhoe Bay.

Stevens began pressuring the Navy last fall, after Alaska Commissioner of Natural Resources Charles Herbert called the debris at the Point "by far the worst eyesore in the Arctic."

Stevens said the Navy has funded the clean-up, schedule for completion by next spring.