

Ethics bill passes House

The Associated Press

JUNEAU — A proposed constitutional amendment aimed at forcing out of office any legislator convicted of a felony sailed through the state House of Representatives Wednesday.

Under the resolution, legislators would have 10 days to appeal a lower court conviction, and such appeals would be heard by the Alaska Supreme Court on an expedited basis.