

Ten Northwest Alaska residents graduated from the first 24-week Millwright Training Course conducted at Alaska Vocational Technical Center in Seward this summer. Four of the students have begun employment at the Red Dog Mine, and the others will be joining them shortly. Ben Ikerd, admission officer, has scheduled the next class for February 1990. This year's class included from left, seated, Andrew Jackson of Kotzebue, David Walton of Noatak, Rodney Snyder of Kotzebue, Willard Commack of Shungnak, Floyd Skin of Selawik. From left, standing, are Delong Edwards of Cominco, Sigwien Cleveland of Ambler, Patsy Newlin of Noorvik, Dean Hildreth of Kotzebue and Nel Jones, an instructor from Seward. Not shown are Calvin Gooden of Noorvik and Charles Smith of Selawik.
