Republican Party Says "Stop Building Rural Schools"

At the State Republican convention on September 9, a resolution was adopted that:

- Would file a lawsuit challenging the settlement of the Molly Hootch case, and
- Would stop money now authorized or planned for building rural schools.

Shocked? So was Chancy Croft

"I was shocked that the Republican Party has decided to try and stop rural school construction. It's time we had a Governor who will stand up for our children. I want people to know the Democratic Party supports rural schools and that I will continue school construction as Governor. I won't try to set aside the Molly Hootch decision. Education is one of the most important things that we do, and it's just as important in rural Alaska as it is in the cities. Governor Hammond may not care about it, but I do, and I'm going to make sure that rural school construction continues."
