

Photo by Chris Cushman

Michael Jochim, archaeologist, left, and Napoleon Chagnon, cultural anthropologist, take a moment to chat during the recent Alaska Anthropological Association's 16th annual meeting March 3-4 at the Sheraton Anchorage Hotel. The two, both from the University of California — Santa Barbara, were guest speakers. Chagnon discussed warfare and violence in primitive society, and Jochim discussed hunting and gathering societies that occupied Europe for thousands of years prior to the spread of agriculture.

