

'Sasquatch' Here Long Before First Tourist

(From THE DRUM)

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C. is fast becoming a plush tourist centre and too elegant to be a stamping ground for the Sasquatch (a legendary Indian mountain man reported to be eight feet tall and completely covered with hair); however, the town's officials may have difficulty convincing residents.

Chief Norman Francis of the Chehalis reserve said, "The legend of the Sasquatch is as old as Harrison Lake and the giants were here long before the first tourist."
