

CAA Hires Siverly

Clarence "Rocksy" Siverly, a youngish Athabascan man from Fairbanks, was hired this week to head the Native Welcome Center by the North Star Borough Community Action Agency.

Siverly's duties will be to develop a welcome center to help native people who come to the city. The main job of the center will be to help natives to find jobs, housing, assistance in going to places they need to go to, and a place in which they can congregate, visit and talk.

Siverly also hopes to establish an arts and crafts program in conjunction with the center.

He hopes to get the Welcome Center going by next month and in time for the North American Championship Dogsled Races when hundreds of native will flock into Fairbanks.
