

Bay Health Corp.

The Bristol Bay Area Development Corporation of RurAL CAP has incorporated a Health Corporation for that area.

Incorporators are Nick Gregory from Egegik, President of the Bristol Bay Area Development Corporation; Paul Matsumo of Ugashik; Gust Bartman from Dillingham; Elizabeth Hester of Levelock; and Robert Clark of Dillingham.

A board of directors will be elected at the first annual meeting and until that time, the incorporators will serve as a board.

The corporation was organized to provide comprehensive health services in the State, as well as conducting other business of a non-profit nature as deemed necessary or desirable by their board.

A $100,000 budget is proposed and funds are being sought through the Health Affairs Division of the Alaska Federation of Natives.

ALASKA METHODIST UNIVERSITY, an equal opportunity employer, invites applications from qualified individuals for a limited number of anticipated positions, especially from members of groups presently underrepresented in its workforce.

Openings expected are in the Alaska Rural Teacher Training Corps, Alaska Student Higher Education Services (both Special Services and Upward Bound), the Center for Intercultural Studies, and other University programs.

While the nature of the positions varies, all are student oriented and require relevant educational experience and ability to work effectively across a broad spectrum of responsibilities.

Resumes and references should be sent to: Office of the President, Alaska Methodist University, Anchorage, Alaska 99504.

tempted to have the case thrown out of Northwest Territories Supreme Court, but Justice William Morrow ruled that he would retain legal control of the case.

Morrow also continued the land freeze instituted in April through July.

"I have heard argument based on references to aboriginal rights, crown title, Hudson's Bay land, the manner of the handling of patents and land grants, transfers involving the two governments — none of which is before me in concrete form as evidence," he added.

In the latest developments of the case, the news is that caveat hearings may sit in Mac Kenzie settlements in order to allow Justice Morrow to hear testimony from elderly Indian people who were present at treaty signings.

The hearings will not resume until July 9, and petroleum interests are protesting that the delay and the land freeze are obstructing oil activities and applications for pipeline construction.
