Friend of the Past...

- As Governor, Wally Hickel created the first state Native commission — Rural Affairs and made it possible for state-wide native leaders to meet the set out solutions to native claims and education issues.
- As Secretary of the Interior, Wally Hickel took a direct and personal role to convince the President of the United States of the importance of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act and fought to increase both the cash settlement and land entitlement.
- As Secretary of the Interior, Wally Hickel reorganized the Bureau of Indian Affairs to give Indians and Natives self-determination and appointed an Alaskan Native leader as national Commissioner.

Perry Eaton and Claude Demientieff, Jr. talk with Wally Hickel about jobs in Alaska.
