ALASKA
OIL SPILL

One Year After.

All this week, the Alaska Public Radio Network looks at life in Alaska one year after the nation's biggest oil spill.

Tune to public radio March 19-23 for a series of special reports on how the spill has affected the economy, fishing, the environment, the oil industry, and our lives for the past year — and where we go from here. Coverage from APRN will be featured on National Public Radio morning and evening news shows, and in programming on Saturday, March 24.

The highlight of the week is a special oil spill documentary produced by APRN. The program airs Saturday, March 24 at 11 AM in Anchorage and throughout the state.

Join us for this comprehensive and insightful series.
