Over the next year, we will be printing the book Adventures in the Alaska Economy as a serial. Every week we will present approximately one and a half pages. The book, an economics text presented in comic book form, is the result of a collaboration between economics professors Steve Jackstadt, Lee Huskey and artist John Dawson.

The book will be available after February 1990 and may be obtained by calling the Alaska Council on Economic Education at 786-1901.

Episode III ARCTIC GRAVEYARD

In 1900, fewer than twenty ships entered the fishery. By then most of the whales had been killed and a variety of substitutes for whale oil, including coal and petroleum products, had been successfully developed and marketed. The whaling industry was caught in a squeeze. On the one hand whales were more and more expensive to kill and on the other, declining demand was depressing the prices.
