

Creamer's Dairy Off Limits to Snowmobilers

The Alaska Department of Fish and Game announced that the recently purchased Creamer's Dairy property designated as the Fairbanks Wildlife Management Area will be closed to snow-machine use after April 6 in order to make the area as attractive as possible to migrating waterfowl.

"The area is used annually by 30,000 to 40,000 water fowl as a resting and feeding area before continuing their northward journey. Thousands of people, both young and old, visit the area each spring to observe the many species of waterfowl and other bird life that sport their ornate and colorful breeding plumage," said Grundy, Game Biologist.

(Continued on page 4)

Creamer's Dairy

(Continued from page 2)

"The area will again be available to snowmachine enthusiasts next winter," said Grundy.