

Our flag is a symbol of hope and peace

To the editor:

My opinion about flag burning is very much leaning toward the fact of having the flag not cared about.

The flag should be a symbol of freedom and a symbol of hope and peace. My main opinion about the subject is that it can go both ways — free or communist.

Our constitution says that every man is created equal, and the right of every man is equal. That should go the same for the flag.

We serve our country to protect the flag and our American symbol. People who torch and hate our flag should not be in America. They should be in a communist country.

The poorest person may be the richest

To the editor:

I am writing to you about people caring about each other. Don't be jealous of one another.

You see this when our loved ones die. People are real sad. We cry, feel the emptiness in our hearts. And there is deep pain in our hearts that means we care for one other.

We all know one day the Great Spirit will come for us, and the last judge will be the lord. No matter who you are, no matter what you do, you can't pass dying. You got to go through it. I got to go through it, too.

If people think they're rich, the poorest person might be the richest with God.

I'll tell you we came into this world poor. Then we'll leave this world poor. Don't be too greedy or jealous because we'll all have to die, no matter who you are.

I tell you that's the part that hurt the most! We don't know where, when or how. So matter of fact that's why people care for each other. There is love for each other, you know.
