

Tundra Times wins 2 second-place awards

FAIRBANKS — The Tundra Times won two second-place awards for photos in a statewide weekly newspaper contest.

Results were announced by the sponsor, the Farthest North Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists/Sigma Delta Chi.

A package of articles on the Susitna Valley flood last October won best local reporting for the staff of The Frontiersman in Palmer.

Professional journalists judged the entries. Awards were made in all categories, except columns, where judges did not find entries meriting awards.

The Tundra Times awards went to Norris Klesman, a free-lance photographer who does work for the newspaper. The awards were for the Aug. 18 front-page photo showing gubernatorial candidates in the "best photo" category and for the July 28 photo page of the World Eskimo-Indian Olympics in the "best photo series" category.
