Subsistence Board to hold Kenai meetings

The Federal Subsistence Board (Board) will hold public meetings during June to hear public comment and provide information on proposed customary and traditional use eligibility determinations for rural Kenai Peninsula communities and proposed subsistence moose seasons on federal public lands on the Kenai National Wildlife Refuge in Unit 15. Mitch Demientieff, Chair of the Board, will chair each of the meetings. Public input meetings will be considered by the Board when it meets on July 13 in Anchorage to establish final regulations, which it intends to have in place by August 1995.

The Board has proposed that the rural communities of Whittier, Hope, Cooper Landing, Ninilchik, Seldovia, Nanwalek, and Port Graham receive customary and traditional use eligibility under federal subsistence regulations. Residents would be eligible to harvest moose, caribou, sheep, goat, black bear, and brown bear on federal public lands in Units 7 and 15. The Board's proposal would establish customary and traditional use determinations, but does not change earlier determinations on the rural status of Kenai Peninsula communities.

The Board has also proposed eral subsistence moose season, with spike-fork/fifty-inch/threebrow-tine antler restrictions, on the Kenai National Wildlife Refuge in Unit 15. The season would open ten days in advance of the State of Alaska's August 20 sport hunt opening. Residents of Hope, Cooper Landing, Ninilchik, and Seldovia would be eligible to harvest moose on refuge lands in Unit 15(A); residents of Hope Cooper Landing, Ninilchik, Seldovia, Nanwalek and Port Graham on refuge lands in Unit 15(B); and residents of Ninilchik, Nanwalek, Port Graham, and Seldovia on refuge lands in Unit 15(C).
