

Genial Jimmy Roosevelt Visits Fairbanks

A tall genial man came to Fairbanks last week and campaigned for Vice President Hubert Humphrey for President as well as to campaign for Democratic candidates for U.S. Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives, Mike Gravel and Nick Begich respectively.

The man was James Roosevelt, the eldest son of the late President of the United States, Franklyn Delano Roosevelt.

"We have now caught up with Richard Nixon," said James Roosevelt last Friday. "I think Humphrey is right even with Nixon at the moment."

During the many weeks past, Vice President Humphrey was reported by press that he was behind Richard Nixon indicated by polls.

Roosevelt said that Hubert Humphrey has been doing the same kind of campaigning President Harry Truman did when Truman stunned the nation by defeating Thomas Dewey for President.

"I'm hopeful that Mr. Humphrey will come to Alaska before the election. I'm sure he will," said Roosevelt.

Roosevelt was a Democratic congressman from California for eleven years.
