The "new prospector" has it all over the old timer. Early miners and trappers living in Alaska's remote areas had to wait until Spring Breakup to send messages to family and friends Outside. Not anymore. Thanks to RCA Alaska Communications, Inc., a fast modern long distance communications system now exists at Prudhoe Bay, and soon will run all along the trans-Alaska pipeline route to Valdez. The long, difficult winter has been shortened. The greatly-expanded communications system means pipeline workers and people in nearby communities along the route can hear voices of loved ones any day, any time of day, all year long. It's happening because of RCA Alascom. On the Communications Frontier.
