

People once believed that the stone known as jacinth could protect them from plague.