

Alaskan Agriculture Through The Years

William Young and his crop. In 1909 Mr. Young realized an income of $7,755 for his crop. The Fairbanks area farmer also reported at the time that he had a barn full of hay for his own use.
(See Agriculture From The Past, page 2)
University of Alaska Archives

Tanana Valley Agricultural Associations's flour mill, located near the train station on North Cushman Street.

University of Alaska Archives
Charles Bunnell Collection

Orin Snodgrass on the Yankovich Farm in the 1960's.

University of Alaska Archives

Dan Peger, longtime Fairbanks resident, who has done extensive experimental gardening.

Photo courtesy TVA

