

Coast Guard May Branch at Kodiak

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Congressman Nick Begich said that the United States Coast Guard is looking into the feasibility of moving into Kodiak.

He said that the Coast Guard is also examining the alternatives and costs of making such a move.

Representative Begich said that the Coast Guard feasibility study would not be complete for two or three weeks.

He was careful to note that the Coast Guard facilities in Ketchikan and Juneau would not be affected.
