

life and scenes of remote Eskimo's Anaktuvuk Pass

A FUTURE DOG TEAM tries riding on the sled (above) while their rival, the snow machine, gets a brush off from an Anaktuvuk housewife.

THAT'S HOW TO GO at 40° below. No frostbite for this youngster. Below school kids play the Anaktuvuk version of "Musical Chairs" at a party.

—Photos by LAEL MORGAN

MASK MAN, John Hugo, shows some of the frames he carves which villagers use to stretch faces in caribou hide. To the right are two fine finished products by Simon Paneak. These are slated for a museum.

