

UNUSUAL EQUIPMENT, UNUSUAL MAN--As a boy in the mining town of Flat near McGrath, Johnny Anderson watched the streets of his town being cleared by an "Adams Leaning Wheel Grader No. 10." Some years later, Johnny flew as the crew complement to a Pan American Pilgrim aircraft flying between Fairbanks and Nome and other Northern Alaskan communities. Still flying after all these years, Johnny touched down at Rampart the other day and discovered an old Adams grader in workable condition and couldn't resist trying his hand at the controls. Please turn to page 12 for more photographs.

--Staff Photo