

January Jamboree starts Wednesday

UNALAKLEET — The Fifth Annual January Jamboree will be Wednesday through Saturday with almost non-stop basketball action in four divisions.

There will be a Men's A and B, along with a Women's A and B. Spaces are limited and will be filled on a first come, first served basis.

The registration fee is $75 and should be accompanied by a tentative roster list.

For a second year, the Jamboree will host a crafts-trade fair. Craftsmen and artists from throughout Western and Northwestern Alaska are invited to exhibit and sell their wares.

This year's Jamboree has added several new items, according to sponsors. A volleyball tournament will be open on a first come, first served basis. Plans are to have men's, women's and co-ed divisions with four teams allowed in each division. The registration fee is $25 per team.

A dogteam sprint race will be run on Friday, with the course mostly visible from town. An ice-fishing contest on Thursday afternoon also will be new.

Nightly dances at the Igloo will highlight entertainment. A live music coffeehouse and Eskimo dancers are tentatively scheduled as part of the Jamboree entertainment.
