

Dr. John Muth
Promoted to New
Anchorage ANS Post

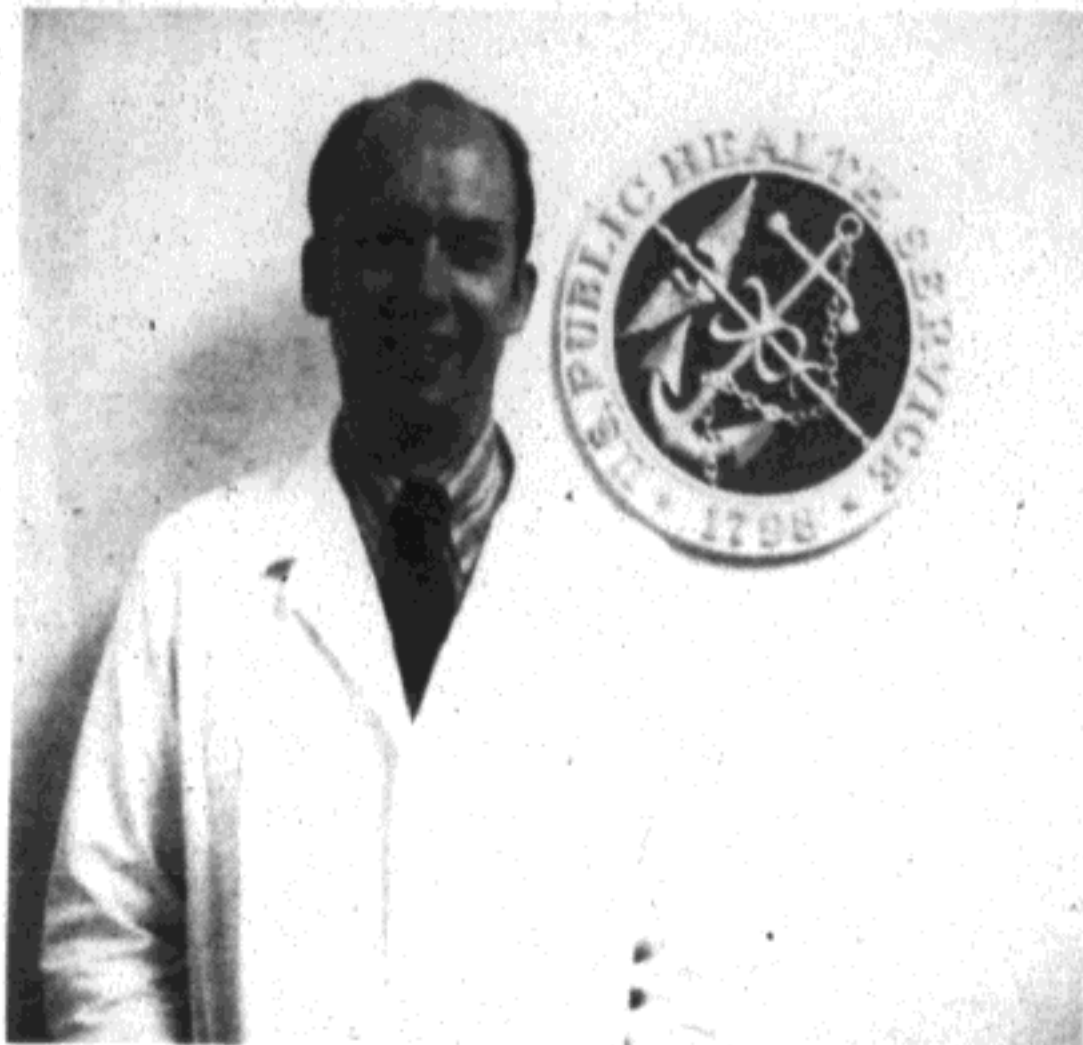

Dr. John B. Muth has been promoted to the position of Director of the Anchorage Service Unit and the Alaska Native Medical Center (Alaska Native Health Service).

For the past two years, Muth has served as the medical director of the Center and for seven years prior to that was chief of the Obstetrics-Gynecology Department. Altogether, he has put in 18 years of service at U.S. Public Health Service facilities.

Muth is a member of the Anchorage Medical Society, Alaska State Medical Association, American Medical Association and consultant to the Cordova Community Hospital.

In 1972 and 1977, Muth received the American Medical Association Physicians Recognition Award for Continuing Medical Education.

Muth, who is married and has six children, teaches classes for nurses, nurse practitioners and paramedics at the University of Alaska at Anchorage.

DR. JOHN B. MUTH