FAIRBANKS — Dr. Jang H. Koo, assistant professor of Japanese and Linguistics at the University of Alaska here, has received a grant for summer research on Eskimo linguistics.

The grant, for some $2,000, is from the American Council of Learned Societies.

Koo received a similar grant last year, and this year will continue his research. He has published several articles on Eskimo linguistics during the last year, and expects this summer's research to result in additional publications.
